Update On Bowling Green Bicentennial By Don Hamilton

Here we have only known after hunting for a year and a half and the entire Basye family hunting also, that it was assumed that there were no pictures of John W. Basve that exist.

Or possibly ever were taken. Then two weeks ago John Haley of Bowling Green dug deep enough to find only a picture of one old time photography plate. Photographs like this were invented around 1838. This picture had to be taken between 1940 and his death in 1945. We are so luckly that he even had a picture taken.

The picture of the original plate definitely shows evidence of damage from the last approximately 185 or so years We are just glad we got what we have. Andrew Hamilton searched hours to be sure that this was a genuine picture and not a hoax. Evidence points to the fact that it is genuine. Then our Pike County resident artist John Stoeckley, also a dedicated history buff, decided that he would give the gift of a genuine pen and ink cleaned up image for our committee to use to enhance From this pen and ink we will take orders at the festival for

Two council members, we were originally going to have wooden nickels of our logo with a buffalo or something on the back to give to kids We no longer are going to have wooden nickels but stamped high quality on both side, aluminum coins as souvenirs. Without this clean pen and ink picture of John Basye it would not have been possible to even considered duplicating this picture on wood in a small format such as a coin. Now with these stamped aluminum coins we can have a clean coin with Mr Basye on one side and our logo on the other. But why is this so important? We wanted a nice meaningful souvenir for $1 for sale during the festival. With this being a stamped coin like they do in the US mint we have to purchase 6,000 coins coins minimum.

We are going to this as we want the high school all the way down to preschool Bowling Green school district area students, private church school and home school student to each have one free coin given to them as the steering committee plans on having a distribution day for all of our kids. We are trying numbered copies that can be to build up wonderful memories and future community servants and volunteers.

At that time, the kids that are left around here will be then in their 50's and 60's and with their good memories, will hopefully want to organize a festival in 2073. We hope that they will carey forward the tradition of the 1923 Centennial, 1973 Sesquicentennial and the 2023 Bicentennial.

The only way 2073 will happen is to start growing up our community leaders and festival leaders for the future now. Myself, Historian Don Hamilton, really enjoyed the sesquicentennial prior to my senior year at BGHS. That year I played taps at the opening of our community center and library and won second place in the logo contest. So here I am now.

Things literally change every day as far as activities and developments for this festival. This is not an ordinary annual festival but for many, a once in a lifetime opportunity for Bowling Green and for the fellowship for our people. God is with us and that is why this is working so well.

Stay up to date with our newspaper articles, Facebook listings and our website bgmo200.com. We still need volunteers for an hour or so here and there. Be a part of this excitement.

Record Shows Another Louisiana Officer Was Murdered

BY BRENT ENGEL CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Lowell Pew isn't the only Louisiana police officer to be murdered.

Additional research shows William Kingston was gunned down less than three weeks after serving with the Union in the Civil War.

Pew was shot to death while investigating a trainyard burglary on Feb. 14, 1900. Kingston was killed on Dec. 17, 1864, by two thieves suspected of being part of a Confederate crime ring.

The Louisiana Journal reported Kingston was "a brave man, and always performed what he believed to be his duty, without fear or hesitation. Two stolen mules

The "scene of intense excitement" began when a posse rode into town on that Saturday morning.

Being sought were two men who had stolen mules from a farm along Lick Creek in Audrain County.

The posse "had not been in our city over half an hour before the rogues came into town in a buggy, the mules being led by the horse attached to the buggy," the newspaper reported.

came The men Louisiana from Clarksville and were looking for a place to cross the Mississippi into Illinois. Told that the ice-covered river would not support their team, the men turned up South Carolina Street.

Kingston was walking along Main Street and as the team passed, he recognized the suspects from a description given by the posse.

"He overtook them about half way along the block between Main and Third and, seizing the mules by their halters, demanded the outlaws to surrender," The Journal said.

The mules were startled and knocked Kingston to the ground. The suspects 'jumped out of the buggy and ground. took to their heels." Kingston her husband. Their only child likely was named for an aunt, a Louisiana High School graduate and local educator who had died of malaria at age 25 just seven months prior to May's birth.

May Emma Rule was less than two years older than her sister, Laura Birkhead. The Louisiana Journal said she was "universally loved and admired for her amiable qualities, sweetness of temper and loveliness of character."

Before turning one, May received what was likely her first newspaper reference, albeit an anonymous one.

The Old Toll Booth

A toll booth stood for almost a quarter-century along the Missouri approach to the former Champ Clark Bridge at Louisiana. The photo is part of a collection donated recently to the Louisiana Area Historical Museum by John Wood. Revenue from tolls helped pay for the structure, which was completed in 1928. The final charge of 50 cents around $4.70 today - was collected at 5:59 a.m., June 17, 1952. It was paid by Ray Dolbeare, a farmer from Kinderhook, Ill., who worked at the Hercules plant in Louisiana. The toll booth was demolished afterward. One of her many friends was another headstrong Pike County girl who would have a far-ranging impact.

BESTIES Though 12 years younger, Genevieve Clark shared a strong rapport with May. The daughter of Congressman Champ Clark of Bowling Green was astute, prudent and determined. She would never be legally able to vote for her father, but Genevieve from an early age was passionate about politics. Those around her saw a born organizer who didn't back away from a challenge. Genevieve shared her first name and an affinity for writing with her mother, who had taught at Pike College in Bowling Green. From her teacher-turned-lawyer father she drew an ability for savvy public speaking. By the time of her high school graduation, she'd already published articles in some of the same national newspapers that wrote stories about her.

The Clark and Birkhead families had close ties. William Birkhead had served as manager on one of Champ's campaigns. In addition, Laura Birkhead's brother, Adrian Rule, once worked for Champ's Louisiana newspaper. Another brother, Judge Virgil Rule, was a former student of Clark's.

May already was a successful seamstress when her father died in 1904, and she did not hesitate in becoming the breadwinner for her mother and herself.

'She was in demand here in Louisiana for her sewing and because of relatives of friends in Louisiana," remembered local historian Betty Allen.

March Was Developmental Disability Awareness Month

The month of March is De-Disability velonmental Awareness Month, and the Pike County area has much to be proud of when it comes to supporting our citizens with developmental disabilities. The history of Pike County bears this out.

In 1955, four mothers of children with developmental disabilities approached then Superintendent of Schools Ruth Jensen, and requested her assistance to establish a state school for children with special needs.

The group secured a location in the basement of the Bowling Green junior high school, and Lillian Shaper State School was born. Classes were started in January 1960, and eventually the program was relocated in 1974 to the Pike County Senate Bill 40 campus, located at the junction of Highway 161 and Business Route 61 in Bowling Green.

Shortly after getting education for their children implemented, the small group of advocates, who became known as the Champ Clark Association for Challenged Citizens, and later "The Learning Center", partnered with the Hannibal sheltered workshop to establish a satellite workshop in Bowling Green in October 1966. Initially, the Pike Shop was located in the same school building as the State School, but on June 12, 1972 the Pike Shop relocated to a new building on the Senate Bill 40 of the Hannibal sheltered workshop, it remains at the same location today, offering contract work for various industries the employees' jobs include packing, collating, assembly, and recycling.

One month after getting the Pike Shop going, on November 11, 1966, a meeting was held at the former Wil-Lo Café in Bowling Green where Russell Armentrout, a member of the Champ Clark Association, presented a plan to establish group homes for persons with developmental disabilities in Pike County. At the time, there were only a handful of large state institutions scattered throughout the state, and very few options for parents to keep their adult children with developmental disabilities close to home.

Seeing a need for state enabling legislation to make his plan a reality, Armentrout partnered with St. Louis businessman Frank Ackerman in the late 1960s to advocate at the state capitol for passage of what would later become known as the Senate Bill 40 statute. Passed in 1969 by the state legislature, the legislation allowed individual counties throughout Missouri to provide for a property tax to meet the needs of their citizens with developmental disabilities in areas residential, employment, and related services

> Since its establishment in the late 1960s, nearly 90 Missouri counties have passed the Senate Bill 40 enabling legislation, collectively serving thousands of individuals with developmental disabilities throughout the state.

Center Has Grown

In the 1970's, citizens of ment. Bowling Green determined that children with a disability needed a preschool.

Through the hard work and dreams of many citizens, The Learning Center was established. It has had different locations and formats but at its core was always the hopethat children with disabilities would have access to a quality education.

Today, The Learning Center (TLC) is a not for profit private preschool in Bowling Green which is operated by the Champ Clark Association for Challenged Children, Inc. From the basement of a house at Ruth Jensen Village to its present location on Business

TLC has grown and expanded to now serve children of all abilities in an inclusive environment. That is, they all work and play together.For those children who qualify, TLC provides physical, occupational, speech, language and developmental therapy as well as transportation. TLC maintains a low sta% to student ratio with some students receiving one on one assistance.

TLC's mission is to provide a safe, nurturing environment which includes all children and motivates them to explore, create and learn, regardless of their abilities. Rep. Chad Perkins BUDGET BILLS THIRD

READ & PASS HBs 1-13 & 15 passed the House this week and will now move onto the Senate. Debate quickly became inflamed amid the amendments previously offered regarding Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI). Reflecting on this divisive debate, Perkins commented, "DEI is divisive to our state, where we seek to unite, it seeks to divide and stifle diversity of thought. It is an insidious ideology that has taken root throughout our state government, and it is our duty, as elected officials, to seek out this ideology and eradicate it. The most efficient way to accomplish this task is through the state budget." Perkins concluded, "My goal is always to give people, all people, an equal opportunity for success, allowing them to succeed, or fail, based on their merits. My goal is never to create a false equity that seeks to produce equality of outcome. That latter goal will always fail and will destroy individual initiative in the process, and I, for one, will not stand for it."

MISSOURI HOUSE APPROVES FISCAL YEAR 2024 STATE OPERATING BUDGET (HBs 1-13)

HBs 2 and 3 which contain the funding for education did not receive a single vote from Democrats. After this vote, Perkins commented, "I'm disappointed to see that none of my colleagues across the aisle chose to fully fund the foundation formula. The members of the Missouri House of Representatives this week approved a $45.6 billion state operating budget for the upcoming fiscal year that begins in July. The 13 appropriations bills passed by the House include full funding for the state's school foundation formula, funding increases for institutions of higher learning, additional support for law enforcement and school safety, and new funding for nursing homes and child care providers.

That number includes full funding for the state's foundation formula that is used to fund K-12 public schools. It also includes an additional $233 million to provide a total of $347 million to fully fund school transportation for the second time in as many years. The House Budget Chairman included another $55.1 million in funding for Close the Gap grants that will help Missouri families address the learning loss that occurred as a result of the pandemic.

The budget includes approximately $1.4 billion for higher education and workforce development. Included in that figure is a 7% funding increase for community colleges and a 5% increase for four-year universities. The spending plan also includes an additional 2% increase for four-year institutions that will be allocated through a performance-based system. The FY 2024 budget also includes full funding for the state's scholarship program such as Bright Flight, Access Missouri, and the A+ Scholarship Program.

With the approval of the state budget, House members also showed their strong support for law enforcement and public safety. The spending plan now on its way to the Senate would provide a 20% pay increase for the Missouri State Highway Patrol and Capitol Police. The budget also includes $50 million for school safety grants for Missouri schools to make physical security investments on their campuses, develop safety plans, establish school resource officer programs, and increase active threat trainings. Additionally, the budget provides an additional $2 million to the Missouri National Guard to assist with recruitment.

The bills now move to the Missouri Senate for consideration. The House and Senate will have to reach final agreement on the bills by Friday, May 5.

Currently, a person caring for up to six children, with a maximum of three children under the age of two, can operate an unlicensed child care facility. Currently, up to two children who are five years old or older that are related to the child care provider within the third degree will not be included in the maximum number of children for which the family child care home is licensed. tivize unlicensed providers to become licensed, which will give the Department more oversight to protect the children. There is a need for daycare services and this bill will open up space for more service to be provided.

HB 1133 modifies provisions relating to credit toward the service of a sentence of imprisonment by changing the beginning of the credit accrual to after the offense occurred, as opposed to the current provision of after conviction. This credit must be based upon the certification of the sheriff, and may be supplemented by a certificate of a sheriff or other custodial officer from another jurisdiction having held the person on the charge of the offense for which the sentence is ordered. The court, when pronouncing sentence, may award additional credit for time spent in prison, jail, or custody before the commencement of the sentence for those in which the person was incarcerated, but for whom no detainer or warrant was served. The total amount of credit must not be more than the number of days between the date of the offense and the commencement of the sentence. Supporters say the bill helps address the various nuances when awarding jail time credit, such as defendant mobility throughout the state, providing credit for time already served, and ensuring that no offender or inmate would be required to do doubletime. Post-conviction motions relating to recalculation and resentencing may be reduced as well.

The House approved the bill by a vote of 139-16. It now moves to the Senate for consideration.

April Book Reviews

APRIL 2023 LIBRARY STAFF JUVENILE BOOK REVIEW LINES OF COURAGE BY JENNIFER A. NIELSEN REVIEWED BY BRENDA GOWER, FARBER LIBRARY

BRANCH MANAGER Lines of Courage takes place during World War I. It tells the stories of five young teens, two males and three females, from five different European nations, Austria-Hungary, Great Britain, France, Russia, and Germany, which are involved in World War I.

Jennifer Nielsen tells the story of how the lives of these young people changed with the war, how each person showed courage, and gives the reader a personal look at this historical time. World War I was a tragic time in our history, but the stories of these five people, while they have to face many hardships, are written with hope and acts of kindness. As the war continues, the lives of these five people cross paths as friendshipsare

Reading Lines of Courage helped me to understand some of what was happening during World War 1. Jennifer Nielsen has written other juvenile historical fiction books, which I am looking forward to reading. There are several books by Jennifer A. Nielsen available through the Mexico-Audrain County Library System.

Over the past year, Lina's life turned upside down by her mother's short illness and death.

Now, she is moving to Tuscany for the summer to live with the father that she has never met. She is only doing this because it was her mother's last wish that she get to know her fa-

What kind of father is not around for sixteen years, and why has he not tried to contact her? When Lina arrives, all she wants to do is be back home with her best friend, Addie, who is determined to help Lina return to Seattle.

Things begin looking up for Lina after meeting her father, Howard, who is the caretaker of a World War II cemetery in Italy, and meeting the handsome Lorenzo, known as Ren. She is then given a journal that her mom kept when she was attending art school in Italy. Through this journal, Lina uncovers a magical world of secret romances, art, and hidden bakeries. Along with Ren, Lina begins to follow in her mother's footsteps to unearth a secret that will end up changing everything Lina knew about her mother, her father, and even herself. This book is fast-paced and perfect for fans of romance and travel. I felt like I was fully immersed in Italy's culture throughout the entire novel. This novel is the first in a three book series: the second book is Love & Luck, and the third book is Love & Olives. Fans of Gayle Forman, Huntley Fitzpatrick, and Hannah Reynolds would love this
