Angel Tree Recipient Excited To Give Back

NECAC, the Salvation Army and Walmart have teamed to offer the Angel Tree program in Pike County.

The Pike County woman's family received gifts last year. So, this Christmas, she plans to give back.

Angel Tree is an effort of NECAC, the Salvation Army and Bowling Green Walmart. People who shop at Walmart will be able to select a tag from the Angel Tree and buy gifts listed. NECAC and the Salvation Army will make sure the packages get to fam-

"I think it's a great program," Ackerman said. "It's helped me in the past. Times are tough. It's always good to know there are people out there to help."

Angel Tree is open to Pike County residents only. Tags will not identify recipients, but will have their age, gender and gift requests. Clothing and toys are especially needed. All gifts must be new, but shoppers are allowed to substitute age-appropriate

Coming To Town

The Louisiana Area Historical Museum at 304 Georgia Street will host a visit by Santa Claus in conjunction with the Louisiana Community Christmas Parade on Saturday, Nov. 25. Santa will hear children's gift requests following the parade and tree-lighting ceremony. The parade begins at 5 p.m., at Sunset Park and follows Georgia Street to the downtown. The museum will offer candy canes to the kids and free tours will be available.

Variety Show Promises Fun On Nov. 25

BY BRENT ENGEL

CONTRIBUTING WRITER When an audience is told to expect the unexpected, the result is an entertainment extravaganza.

Such is the prognosis for "The Variety Show," a production by The Changelings Theatre Company of Raintree Arts Council.

It's at 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 25, at The Apple Shed on Highway 79 in Clarksville. Tickets are $15 for adults and $13 for students and seniors.

Director Mary Lang Fournier says the program will have many of the same elements as "The Carol Burnett Show" or "Saturday Night Live."

"Variety is the spice of entertainment," she said. "It allows us to sample a plethora of genres, all in one hour."

The "cocktail of goodies" includes songs, sketch comedy, an original reading by a local author and even a puppet performance. Watch out, but Fournier also promises a little artificial intelligence-inspired audience participation.

Any surprises? "Can't tell...shhh," Fournier whis-"Can't pered. At least there won't be much seasonal stuff.

"We leave the holiday fare to Santa," she said. "There seems to be so much out there already.'

Bobcats Nove Into Final Four By Brice Chandler East Buchanan's next possesEskew/Bryant throat and Inc.

EDITOR

After a weekend victory over East Buchanan, the Bowling Green Bobcats have moved into the final four of Class 2 state championship bracket and now have their sites set on the championship hardware.

The Bobcats handed the back-to-back Class 1 champions their first loss since Sept. 2 of last season.

Bowling Green's offensive line asserted their dominance right away with an opening kick off return to midfield. They followed that up with a march downfield, culminating in a one-vard touchdown run by Bleyne Bryant.

Bobcats' quarterback Jace Eskew connected a quick pass to Aiden Grote in the corner for the two-point conversion.

The effort established an early 8-0 advantage on their first push within the first few minutes of the game.
Head Coach Mark St. Clair noted how the defensive line stepped up their game since the clash with South Shelby.

That factor came into play early on as the Bobcats held the Bulldogs and pressured the East Buchanan quarterback, Gage Busby.

Three minutes into the Bulldog's possession, Neil Raney intercepted a pass and made a huge run from the Bowling Green 35-yard line for a touchdown, followed by Bryant's successful two-point sion. This led to another scoring drive, finished off by Bryant's five-yard touchdown run and a two-point connection from Eskew to Zach Gibson, pushing the lead to 24-0.

Bryant opened the second quarter with a huge run just shy of the goal line, setting the stage for Eskew's twovard keeper, extending the Bobcats' lead to 30-0.

Bulldogs' returner Trevor Klein made a deep run into Bobcats' territory following the kickoff, but he was cut short at the 10-yard line by Aiden Grote. A flag against the Bulldogs along with Bowling Green's defense forces a turnover on downs at the Bowling Green 16-yard

Bryant made an impressive 49-yard touchdown sprint extending Bowling Green's lead, which, after Eskew's two-point run, stood at 38-0.

Klein again broke through the line until he was chased down by Drew Dalton.

The Class 1 state champions found themselves dangerously close to being blanked for the first half of the game until East Buchanan finally marked their presence on the scoreboard with 1:24 left in the second quarter, thanks to Klein's seven-yard touchdown run.

In the second half, Busby connected with Trey Johnson for a touchdown in East Buchanan's first possession closing the gap to 22 points. The Bulldogs defensive line focused on stopping the

K-Ship Announces Collaboration With The Voice Singer

Voice may have their attention focused on Ruby Leigh, they might recognize another competitor's name who has an upcoming collaboration with local vocalist, Kathryn Washington Shipley (K-Ship)

"Well, the cat is out of the bag!" Shipley announced in a media release. "The collab is happening. Myself and award-winning artist, Jackson Snelling, whom many of you recently saw singing on the first Team Reba, during the battle rounds of The Voice are hitting the studio at the first of the year!"

According to his show bio, Snelling and his brother, Dawson, were both adopted by two loving parents. Their father passed away when they were young, leaving their mother to raise them as a single parent. Both brothers have autism.

sensory and behavioral challenges while Dawson struggled with severe cognitive difficulties and didn't speak until he was 7. Despite these challenges, Jackson and Dawson shared a love of music that brought them closer together and became a way for them to communicate. Jackson received his first keyboard at 13 and started performing professionally in the last four years. He's also a prolific songwriter and released a song and music video titled "Please Listen," dedicated to his late father. Jackson is passionate about giving back to the community and donates his time to various charities, including Autism Speaks, the Boys & Girls Haven and WHAS Crusade for Children.

awards in the independent artists scene. Her album "If These Boots Could Talk" won the Josie Music Awarsa Gospel Album of the Year.

"I had the honor of singing at a Charity with Jackson called, "The Sparrows Nest" which is a Christ-centered, multi-support resource for young families here in St Charles County Missouri," Shipley explained. "I knew it was only a matter of time before we got to reconnect again and get in the studio and record an original.

"We Are Called" was written by award winning Songwriter Patrick Dodge.

'We are over the moon to do this collaboration to kick off 2024." She said of the collab and upcoming album. "This song is going to take on Despite Shipley's battle some very cool dynamics, she and we are excited to see where it goes! stay tuned.

From The Mayor's Desk...

November is Native American Indian Month as well as being the month we celebrate our Thanksgiving for all with which we are blessed. We owe much to our American Indian heritage which influenced a great deal of our American culture. It is also National "Caregiving" Month. It is not easy to do, CITY OF BOWLING GREEN state champions! especially while you are trying to manage a full-time job. It is a hard part of life for all involved but it is also a precious time.

Christmas in the Green was once again a very successful activity in Bowling Green and a wonderful tradition which brings our community and visitors together. We have so much to be thankful for in our fantastic community! (I made mistakes in spelling last week. Kay Reading and Evelyn Graham started Christmas in the Green at least 34 years ago and Amy Worthington's new business is called Worthington House).

Trust and belonging are two big reasons why people move into a neighborhood and stay there. Yes, many look to the house itself and amenities like sidewalks, nearby parks, access to grocery, pharmacy opportunities, plus medical accessibility.

Yet "Trust and Belonging" make for solid neighborhoods, workplaces, and towns. Safety and transportation rank up there also, but the bottom line is wherever you have a people-centered neighborhood, workplace, or community where trust and belonging exists, you will have a thriving situation. Where trust and belonging do not exist, it is one of the top reasons why people leave a neighborhood, job, or community. Empowering each other is mandatory for a successful environment.

Congratulations again to the players, coaches, and fans of the Bowling Green Bobcats 2023 football team as they are the District Champions for the third time in three years! There are three more wins to be the Congratulations also goes to the Pike County Commission for being named a Purple Heart County. They join our Bowling Green School District and the City of Bowling Green for also being selected Purple Heart school and city recipients.

Thanks to the Bowling Green School Middle School for providing and recognizing our area Veterans with a luncheon, slide show, and a special speaker. Thanks also to the VFW for their involvement in our great city in recognizing not only those who fought overseas but also our American Armed Forces. Our Pike County Health Department also provided a breakfast and resource fair for our Veterans who, along with their families, sacrificed so much to preserve our Nation, our liberty, freedom of speech and Rule of Law. Again, we have much to be thankful for.

Appreciation goes to LaDon and Alliance for holding off putting up Snowflakes and Christmas Ornaments throughout the City due to citizens that requested they wait until after Veterans Day and yet up for Christmas in the Green. Good hustleon and Crew!

Learn About Bears At Nov. 30 MDC Virtual Program

To Missouri citizens, black bears have become a source of fascination, curiosity - and, in cases where property has been damaged - irritation.

People can learn more about bears at the Missouri Department of Conservation (MDC) virtual program "Black Bears of Missouri" on Nov. 30. This online program will be from 1-2 p.m. and is being put on by the staff at MDC's Twin Pines Conservation Education Center. People can register at: https://mdcevent-web.s3licensing.com/ Event/EventDetails/196479

At the Nov. 30 program, MDC Naturalist Wendy Lott will have interesting facts about black bears in Missouri. She will discuss some of the bear research currently underway in the Show-Me State. She will also have tips on how to keep these curious animals away from your home and how Missourians can become "Bear Aware." This program will include a chat-based questionand-answer option where participants can have their bear questions answered

The Twin Pines Conservation Education Center is located just east of Winona at 20086 Highway 60. For more information about the Nov. 30 virtual program or other upcoming events being put on by the Twin Pines staff, call 573-325-1381. People can also call this number to get signed up for text alerts and email bulletins about upcoming programs being put on by the Twin Pines staff.

Staff at MDC facilities across the state are holding in-person and virtual programs. A listing of these programs can be found at mdc.mo.gov/events.

Department Of Corrections Director Anne Presythe To Step Down

Missouri Department of Corrections (DOC) Director Anne Precythe has announced that her last day with the state of Missouri will be Dec. 5, 2023.

She has served as director of Missouri DOC since January 2017, following a 30-year career in the North Carolina Division of Community Corrections, where she retired as director in 2017. Precythe plans to return home to North Carolina to enjoy a wellearned retirement with friends and family.

"Director Precythe has been a great leader, colleague, and champion in state government, and we wish her the absolute best," Governor Mike Parson said. "As we set out to transform and improve the culture across state government, Anne was there every step of the way. Under Anne's leadership, not only have DOC staff turnover rates decreased but they've reversed, and we've witnessed a renewed sense of pride in public service among team members. Her leadership has been an inspiration not only to DOC but our entire Cabinet, and we will all greatly miss her infectious humor, quick wit, and tireless spirit."

'When I came to Missouri, my goal was to help elevate the Department of Corrections, and I believe my team has accomplished most of what we set out to do," Precythe said. "It has been a great honor to serve as director of this department. I am proud of my team and confident that I'm leaving the department in good hands. While director of DOC in Missouri, Precythe served on the National Institute of Corrections Advisory Board, the Correctional Leaders Association Executive Committee, the Council of State Governments Justice Center Advisory Board, and the inaugural class of the Council on Criminal Justice. She has been president of the national Correctional Leaders Association since 2020.

A DOC interim director will be announced in the coming days prior to Precythe's last day with the state on December 5.

"Our office's focus will be on ensuring stability within DOC as we work together to navigate this transition in leadership," Governor Parson continued.

Grote

Larry Albert Grote, 80, of rural Bowling Green, was reunited with his beloved wife Cathy on Saturday, Nov. 18,

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at St. Clement Catholic Church with visitation 9-11 a.m., and Mass to follow.

Larry was born May 30, 1943, on the family farm in Ashley. He was the only son of Bernice Orf and Albert Grote. He attended elementary school there in Ashley junior/high school in Bowling Green, graduating in

On April 8, 1967, he married Catherine Mae York at the Catholic Church in Elsberry. They made their home in Ashley, where they raised their four daughters.

He is survived by these daughters, their spouses, and grandchildren, Felicia and Гіт Gamm, Hannah, Jessica, Breanne, and Chloe Kroencke, Noah and Avery Gamm; Tina and Roy Niemeyer, Loren, Kimberly, and Megan; Melinda and Jason Kneib and Bryleigh; Angela and Ben Eckler, Carissa, Delci, and Ellis.

Larry was preceded in death by his parents, his wife, and a son-in-law, Kroencke.

Larry instilled in his children and grandchildren the value of hard work as he himself worked at Galloway and Magruder Limestone for over 40 years while also raising hogs and a few cattle at the family farm. He found solace in the simple joys of life-sitting outside under a shade tree, going to church, or praying the rosary.

He had an incredible memory and could retell stories with family and friends with a voice that always let you know he was in the room. While able, he always tried to get to a ball game or recital when his grandchildren were involved.

Pallbearers will be his sons-in-law, Tim Gamm, Roy Niemeyer, Jason Kneib, and Ben Eckler, along with family friends, Russell Orf and David Pine. Honorary pallbearers will be Tim Grote, Michael Swarnes, Sam Hook, and Bob Galloway.

Memorials may be made to the St. Clement Catholic Church for Masses in his memory or the St. Clement Cemetery Association.

May Larry Albert rest in eternal peace, his spirit living on in the hearts of those who loved him.

Gov. Parsons Signs Order On Drought

On Friday, Nov. 17, Governor Mike Parson signed Executive Order 23-10, extending Missouri's drought alert until May 1, 2024.

Currently, the U.S. Drought Monitor indicates that all or portions of at least 85 Missouri counties are experiencing moderate, severe, or extreme drought conditions. The Executive Order declares a Drought Alert in these Missouri counties and any additional county that begins experiencing drought conditions.

'Having to issue a drought alert this spring was quite un-precedented, and unfortu-nately, drought has persisted in Missouri," Governor Par-son said. "While we've had periods of marginal improvement, farmers and ranchers are still feeling the impacts, many forced to sell livestock early and scrambling for alternative feed sources. Some of the most impacted areas are our waterways, slowing barge and river port activity during our busy harvest season. We're extending this alert to continue providing every resource possible to help mitigate the impacts and in hopes that we get plenty of rain throughout the coming winter and spring."

In response to Governor Parson's initial Executive Order declaring a drought alert on May 31, 2023, the Missouri Department of Natural Resources activated the Drought Assessment Committee, a workgroup set up to assess drought levels and work with impact teams on response and recovery recommendations.

The Executive Order was set to expire on December 1, 2023. Extending the order will allow the Drought Assessment Committee and associated impact teams to continue supporting affected communities throughout the winter and continue to expand the state's capabilities to respond to and lessen the impacts of future droughts.

During drought, local condition reports are crucial to understanding impacts to provide timely and appropriate assistance. Citizens can submit information about local drought conditions at Condition Monitoring Observer Reports (CMOR).

A variety of helpful resources are online at www.dnr.mo.gov/drought. The Department of Natural Resources is adding information on drought mitigation and assistance opportunities daily as it becomes available. The one-stop drought website features a link to CMOR, current drought-related news, the current United States and Missouri drought maps, the Missouri Drought Mitigation and Response Plan, and other resources, including information on previous droughts.

Keep Risky Habits Out Of The Kitchen This Thanksgiving

America's biggest food holiday is almost here, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) wants to remind consumers to avoid habits that increase the risk of harmful bacteria in their Thanksgiving

"Unsafe handling and undercooking your turkey can cause foodborne illness," said USDA Under Secretary for Food Safety Dr. Emilio Esteban. "To ensure your Thanksgiving meal is wholesome and memorable without the illness, follow the four steps to food safety: clean, separate, cook and chill, and avoid risky food handling habits that go against USDA guidelines.

Here are seven dangerous habits USDA would like consumers to drop:

#1 Not washing your hands or kitchen surfaces before, during and after food prep: Handwashing is the first step to avoiding foodborne illness. Wash your hands for at least 20 seconds with soap and water before, during and after handling food.

Clean and sanitize any surfaces that have touched raw turkey and its juices and will later touch food, such as kitchen counters, sinks, stoves, tabletops, etc. Cleaning with soap and water physically removes the germs, and sanitizing kills any remaining. Many different sanitizers can be used: an easy homemade version is to make a solution of one tablespoon of liquid chlorine bleach per gallon of water, or you can use a commercial sanitizer or sanitiz-

Thorough handwashing remains a concern for the USDA. The most recent USDA study shows that 87 percent of particself-reported they washed their hands before starting to cook in the test kitchen. However, only 44 percent of participants were observed doing so before meal preparation. Additionally, handwashing was not attempted 83 percent of the time when it should have been done (after handling raw meat or touching contaminated surfaces). Throughout the study, 96 percent of handwashing attempts did not contain all necessary steps.

#2 Using the same cutting boards and utensils for raw and ready-to-eat foods: Cross-contamination is the spread of bacteria from raw meat and poultry onto ready-to-eat food, surfaces, and utensils. Avoid this by using separate cutting boards one for raw meat and poultry and another for ready-to-eat foods like fruits and vegetables that will be served raw.

#3 Defrosting your turkey on the kitchen counter: Leaving any frozen package of meat or poultry for more than two hours on the counter at room temper- place the stuffed, raw turkey in ature is dangerous. Even though an oven set no lower than 325 the center of the package may still be frozen, the outer layer of the food is in the "Danger Zone" between 40 and 140 Fa temperature where foodborne bacteria multiply rapidly. You can safely thaw a turkey using the following methods:

Refrigerator Thawing: When thawing in a fridge, allow roughly 24 hours for every four to five pounds of turkey. After thawing, a turkey is safe in a refrigerator for one to two days.

Cold Water Thawing: When thawing in a cold-water bath, allow 30 minutes per pound and submerge the turkey in its original wrapping to avoid crosscontamination. Change the water every half hour until the turkey is thawed. Cook it immediately after thawing.

#4 Cooking your turkey overnight at a low temperature: It is not safe to cook any meat or poultry in an oven set lower than 325 F. At lower temperatures, meat stays in the Danger Zone for too long. Cook your turkey at 325 F or above and ensure all parts of the turkey reach a safe internal temperature of 165 F.

#5 Relying only on a pop-up temperature indicator: While the pop-up timers found in many turkeys tend to be fairly accurate, they only check the internal temperature in one spot when we recommend three. Always use a food thermometer to ensure your turkey has reached a safe internal temperature of 165 F in the thickest part of the breast, the innermost part of the wing, and the innermost part of the thigh to check its internal temperature.

#6 Stuffing your turkey the night before: USDA recommends against stuffing your turkey since this often leads to bacteria growth. If you plan to stuff your turkey, follow these

Prepare the wet and dry ingredients for the stuffing separately from each other and refrigerate until ready to use. Mixing the dry and the wet ingredients produce an environment that bacteria can thrive in hours before being placed in the oven. Mix wet and dry ingredients just before filling the cavity of the turkey.

Stuff the turkey loosely about 3/4 cup of stuffing per

Never stuff a whole turkey and store in the refrigerator before cooking. Immediately

A stuffed turkey will take 50 percent longer to cook. Once it has finished cooking, place a food thermometer in the center of the stuffing to ensure it has reached a safe internal temperature of 165 F.

#7 Keeping leftovers for more than a week: Store leftovers in small shallow containers and put them in the refrigerator. Thanksgiving leftovers are safe to eat for up to four days when stored in the refrigerator. In the freezer, leftovers are safely frozen indefinitely but will keep the best quality for two to six months.

For more food safety information, call the USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-888-MPHotline (1-888-674-6854), email MPHotline@usda.gov or chat live at ask.usda.gov from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Eastern Time, Monday through Friday. On Thanksgiving Day, the Hotline will be open from 8 a.m. -2 p.m. Eastern Time.

USDA touches the lives of all Americans each day in so many positive ways. In the Biden-Harris Administration, USDA is transforming America's food system with a greater focus on more resilient local and regional food production, fairer markets for all producers, ensuring access to safe, healthy and nutritious food in all communities, building new markets and streams of income for farmers and producers using climate smart food and forestry practices, making historic investments in infrastructure and clean energy capabilities in rural America, and committing to equity across the Department by removing systemic barriers and building a workforce more representative of America. MDC Thanks Deer Hunters For Help With CWD Sampling

The Missouri Department of Conservation (MDC) thanks the thousands of deer hunters who participated in its mandatory sampling efforts in 39 counties this past weekend to test for chronic wasting disease (CWD) in harvested deer. Thanks to hunter participation, MDC collected tissue samples from more than 20,600 hunterharvested deer for CWD testing on Nov. 11 and 12.

CWD sampling consists of MDC staff removing lymph nodes from the necks of harvested deer for testing. Tissue samples are sent to an independent lab for testing.

"We greatly appreciate the many thousands of hunters who brought their deer to mandatory CWD sampling station over the weekend," said MDC Cervid Program Supervisor Jason Isabelle. "Hunters who provide samples from harvested deer play a critical role in MDC's efforts to monitor the spread of CWD and identify new areas of infection."

According to MDC, the opening weekend of the November portion of firearms deer season is the most popular two days for most deer hunters in Missouri. Hunters typically harvest between a quarter to a third of the state's total annual deer harvest during those two days. Focusing on this key weekend gives MDC the best opportunity to collect the most tissue samples for CWD testing during a very concentrated time period.

"Finding CWD as early as possible provides us with the ability to work with landowners and hunters to effectively manage the disease to slow its spread and protect Missouri's deer population," Isabelle said. "The high number of samples collected during opening weekend gives us a much better understanding of the distribution and prevalence of the disease where the disease is located and what percentage of the deer population is affected."

Isabelle noted that MDC collects samples for CWD testing throughout the state each year over the entire deer season. Mandatory sampling is a more intense form of disease surveillance in select CWD Management Zone counties where the greatest potential for new areas of CWD infection

Including the recent sampling efforts, MDC has collected more than 263,000 tissue samples for CWD testing since surveillance for the disease began more than 20 years ago. To date, MDC has found 411 confirmed cases of CWD since the disease was first detected in wild deer in Missouri in 2012. Learn more about CWD surveillance at mdc.mo.gov/cwd.

MDC is also offering free voluntary CWD sampling and testing of harvested deer during the entire deer season at select locations throughout the state, including some MDC offices and participating taxidermists and meat processors.

MDC also offers self-service freezer deer-head drop-off locations within the CWD Management Zone for hunters to deposit harvested deer heads to have tested for CWD. Instructions, packing supplies, and information tags are avail-

Get more information on voluntary sampling locations and drop-off locations online at mdc.mo.gov/cwd. Hunters can get their CWD test results for free online at mdc.mo.gov/cwdResults. Results are available within four weeks from the time of sampling and the wait time if often much less.

According to MDC, whitetailed deer are an extremely important wildlife resource of the state and deer hunting is tremendously popular. Each year, nearly half a million hunters pursue deer in Missouri, which provides a tremendous boon to Missouri's economy and supports thousands of jobs.

CWD is a deadly, infectious disease in deer and other members of the deer family (cervids) that is 100% fatal. There is no vaccine or cure. CWD can be spread from direct deer-to-deer contact, through improper disposal of deer carcasses, and through the environment by deer contacting infectious material from other deer.

Left unmanaged, CWD could have significant effects on Missouri's deer population, hunting culture, and economy. Hunters play a critical role in helping MDC find and manage CWD by having their deer tested and following carcass movement restrictions and other CWD regulations. Learn more at mdc.mo.gov/cwd.

ventDetails/195873 At this program, MDC Naturalist Jessie Ballard will discuss common winter bird species that typically can be found in backyards and will have information about how they can be attracted to yours. Ballard will discuss the different types of feeder options (tube feeders, suet feeders, tray feeders, feed on the ground, etc.) and will explain that, the more options you can provide, the wider range of species you are likely to at-the Cornell Lab of Ornithology and Bird Studies Canada. It is a winter-long survey of birds that visit feeders at backyards, nature centers, and community areas, and other sites across North America. Participants periodically count birds they see at their feeders from November through April and send their information to Project FeederWatch. This widespread collection of data helps biologists track broad-scale movements of winter bird populations. It also provides valuable information about long-term trends in bird distribution and abundance.

Ballard will also discuss how backyard bird observers can provide valuable data for Project FeederWatch. Project

Though the Nov. 30 program is free, registration is required to participate in either time slot. Use the links above. Registrants must provide an e-mail, so a program link can be sent to them. This program will include a chat-based question-and-answer period where participants can interact with the presenters.

MDC's Shoal Creek Center is located at 201 Riviera Drive in Joplin. People can stay informed about upcoming programs at the Shoal Creek Center by signing up for text alerts and e-mail bulletins. People who have questions about how to sign up for text alerts from the Shoal Creek Center can call 417-629-3434.
