When temperatures were warmer before Christmas, work on the outside of the new Casey's facility was moving along rapidly. Bowling Green Building Inspector Mel Orf said that if the weather cooperates, the business should be able to open soon. Casey's had hoped to open the new location near the intersection of Business Highway 61 and 161 early this month but that is unlikely. He said the gas station/convenience store is making strides to complete the parking lot and canopy as soon as weather is more cooperative. Trib photo by April M. Frenick

Lineage Research Highlighted At Pike County NSDAR Meeting

Searching for the story of our ancestors isn't always successful. Many ideas for expanding lineage research were shared at the Dec. 9 meeting of Pike County Chapter NSDAR at First Presbyterian Church in Louisiana. Chairman Marilyn Johnson shared a Research Checklist which included ways to find information such as in family homes through let-ters, family Bibles and photos, school records, etc.

Outside resources to contact were cemeteries, church records, libraries, and genealogical soci-eties. She also suggested searching court probate records, local histories, mortuaries, newspapers and military records. All attending received a copy of the checklist as well as a packet containing census forms and family tree sheets for research.

Vice-regent Louise Sitton presided at the 10 a.m., meeting, led the opening ritual and welcomed a guest, Dr. Sue Dienes. National Defense Chairman Chairman Sandy Niemeyer told about working dogs in the military beginning in WWI in France detecting gas. The dogs are now trained at Lackland Air Force Base. They are trained for five-seven months in detecting bombs, drugs, etc and must reach 95 percent accuracy by one year of age. Only about 50 percent of the dogs reach this goal. Their value is estimated at $100,000 and they save many

The Child Center, Inc. was recently awarded a $3,145 grant through Operation Round Up to purchase stuffed animals that resemble Reka, a service dog used by the organization to provide comfort to children during forensic interviews. Therapy Dog Brings Comfort To Young Abuse Victims

When a young victim shares the experiences of their abuse, forensic interviewers have to remain neutral and can't offer a lot of assurance or comfort at that time.

But that is where Reka comes

The Child Center, Inc., has turned to a therapy dog to provide a calming support to young chil-dren who have been the victims of sexual or physical abuse.

Reka is an accredited service dog used by the child advocacy agency. The Chocolate lab's presence helps children disclose information during a forensic interview about their abuse during a traumatic time in their young lives. Recently, a three-year-old sexu-al abuse victim walked into a courtroom to testify and face her abuser. As she took the stand, Reka was alongside her. "I don't quite know if she would have had the courage to do if she didn't have some control of the situation by having Reka by her," recalled Amy Robins, super-visor of forensic services and Reka's handler.

Headquartered in Wentzville. The Child Center is a non-profit child advocacy center that serves 14 counties in Northeast Missouri, including Lincoln, Warren, St. Charles, Pike and Montgomery. In 2016, The Child Center conducted forensic interviews with 565 chil-dren. As of mid-November, officials had already interviewed 480 children this year from the Wentzville office. The agency also offices in Hannibal and Memphis

The Child Center was a recent recipient of a $3,145 Operation Round Up grant awarded by the Cuivre River Electric Community Trust Board. The funds will be used to purchase 500 stuffed animals that resemble Reka. Each young victim receives their own "Reka" to bring them comfort at

Since the stuffed animals were first introduced, they have contin-ued to be a hit. Robins said they receive positive feedback from parents on a regular basis.

We saw how impactful Reka was here, but we wondered, 'How can we continue that support for kids even though Reka can't see everyone on a daily basis?' " she remarked. "We hear, 'My Reka went to Florida with me, 'my Reka snuggles with me at night when I'm sad.' It is so meaningful for the kids to be able to have them when they leave."

Reka has been a welcome addition to the staff.

"I knew she would be great for our office, but I didn't really know the type of difference it would really make," Robins said. "It is hands down a night and day differ-ence from the kids who use Reka versus the kids who don't."

an save lives. While fire can provide warmth and safety, it also can cause immediate and significant damage that can uproot lives and devastate homes. Because fire is such a for-midable foe, it's imperative that people from all walks of life have a fire safety plan.

THE THREAT OF FIRE

The National Fire Protection Association says U.S. fire depart-ments responded to an average of 358,500 home structure fires per year between 2011 and 2015. On average, seven people die in U.S. home fires per day. The Ontario Ministry of Community Safety & Correctional Services says 48 percent of fires that cause severe losses occur in residential properties. Both the NFPA and the Office of the Fire Marshal and Emergency Management in Ontario state that cooking-related fires are the most prevalent, followed by fires sparked by heating equipment. ignites in 30 seconds, smoke pours into most rooms by 2.5 minutes, and roughly 4.5 minutes after the fire has ignited, flames can be visible from the exterior of a house.

Temperatures inside can grow from 190 F to more than 1400 F in

When fires ignite, time is of the ence to make a fast evacuation. Unfortunately, panic may set in and people may not know how to act when under such acute stress. That's why planning for the event of fire can provide families with the information they need to evacuate safely. Evacuation pla drills should be established and practiced frequently so that getting out alive becomes second nature. However, only about one-quarter of households have actually develescape plan, according to the NFPA. oped and practiced a home-fire

A 'Not Your Momma's Bingo" event that had been planned at the American Legion to benefit the Bicentennial had to be cancelled due to weather. Discussions are taking place to reschedule the event this spring.

Mayor Bart Niedner noted that he and his wife, Michelle, are hosting the Masquerade Ball in hopes of establishing a philanthropic precedent in local government.

'Serving as mayor has given us a front row seat to the needs of our community as well as our community's amazing generosity in addressing those needs. We hope that future administrations might take a pause during each term and bring the Louisiana community together to celebrate our efforts and advance a worthy cause.

Niedner noted that hosting the ball is an expression of his gratitude to the town before leaving the mayor's office in April.

'The opportunity to serve as mayor has been tremendously rewarding. I hope that our efforts during this past term will pay dividends for decades to come. With my term ending during our bicentennial year, this celebration seems an appropriate way to begin our next 200 years - with a moment of gratitude for the path we have shared and an opportunity to benefit the future our children will inherit."
